Feeling good...

...and helping the greater good
Regardless of one’s ability, age, background, culture, faith, or income, the Metro Atlanta YMCA helps people feel good. Members can feel good about exercising and improving their spiritual, mental, and physical well-being.
Greater...

They can feel good mentoring a child or knowing they belong to a volunteer, community impact organization. They can feel good discovering friends, old and new, are here to offer encouragement and inspiration. And, they can feel good giving children a head start in life.

When YMCA members, donors, volunteers, partners, and staff join together, what is accomplished lasts a lifetime. Whether you join, play, volunteer, or donate, you can feel good and help the greater good at the Metro Atlanta YMCA.
Remembering your glory days...
...and creating a better future for others.
WHEN YOU PLAY, JOIN, DONATE, AND VOLUNTEER WITH SUCH IMPACT, YOU FEEL GOOD AND HELP THE GREATER GOOD.

Letter from the President and Board Chairman
Dear Friends...

Whether you join, play, volunteer, or donate, you can feel good and help the greater good through your involvement with the Metro Atlanta YMCA. You’ll capture the spirit with which we welcome the community into our YMCAs every day. Our mission calls us to be deeply committed to our work on individual, local, regional, and international levels. Personal stories from members, volunteers, donors, and staff keep us highly motivated, and the collective impact keeps us keenly focused.

Members tell us they find it easier to balance their work, family and civic lives at the Y. Funders say they find it easier to balance outcomes, donor interests and community impact by investing in the Y. We are blessed to have a dual purpose with meaningful impact: to improve quality of life for each person and to create large-scale community benefit by advancing active lifestyles and school readiness.

Our Y-2010 strategic plan continues to guide our comprehensive work in health and wellness, pre-school and after-school child care, camp, youth sports, education, and youth development. This year’s annual report invites all who read it to feel good and help the greater good through involvement with your neighborhood YMCA.

Of particular excitement this past year:

An historic merger
The Metro Atlanta and Cobb County YMCAs joined together December 31, 2006. The decision to become one association benefits members, volunteers, staff, and the communities within these service areas that have grown together as Atlanta’s perimeter and suburbs expand. We will expand the Y’s outreach and capital investment in underserved communities and will increase the pool of skilled, tenured YMCA staff to support our Y-2010 strategic plan.

Improving health
Our nation’s health choices are contributing to increased rates of disease and reduced quality of life. The YMCA offers a community benefit by improving the health of its residents, especially those with high-risk factors. The applied programs of THE COACH APPROACH® and Youth Fit For Life™ are based on years of research and are helping thousands of adults and children to become more active and to stay healthy.

These are specific, exercise adherence programs developed by the Metro Atlanta YMCA.

Multiple expansions
A new YMCA on Pryor Road in the Turner Field area, The Villages at Carver Family YMCA, is a partnership between the Metro Atlanta and the Butler Street YMCAs. Along with this new YMCA in the city of Atlanta, the Metro Atlanta YMCA invested in community building with expansions in DeKalb, Fulton and Gwinnett counties.

Greater inclusion
More than 19,300 children and adults experienced YMCA programs last year because generous donors contributed to the Partner With Youth annual campaign. More than $2.65 million was given back to residents in local communities through Partner With Youth financial assistance. In 2006, there were 5,428 men, women and young adults involved as volunteers in different programs. And, 5,703 full- and part-time staff members supported these volunteers in fulfilling our YMCA mission.

As we conclude our 149th year of serving metro Atlanta, let our voices be heard. When you play, join, donate, and volunteer with such impact, you feel good and help the greater good.

“The people, the classes, the friendships, the few minutes to focus on myself, and the feeling that my children are getting great care while I learn to care for myself again keeps us coming back to the YMCA.”

KELLY BRANNAM,
G. CECIL PRUETT COMMUNITY CENTER FAMILY YMCA
Building community...

...and creating strong families.

The dynamic, public-private partnership that created the G. Cecil Pruett Community Center Family YMCA is a wonderful example of how the YMCA can become an integral part of a community.

“The collaboration between the YMCA and the city of Canton exemplifies successful community development,” says John Hicks, G. Cecil Pruett Community Center Family YMCA executive director. “The city recognizes the YMCA’s expertise in health enhancement, recreation, youth, and family programs. We can do more working together than either entity could accomplish alone.”

Opened December 2005, this beautiful community center is a place where people of all ages meet friends or gather to discuss issues important to the area. Through a variety of programs, members, volunteers and staff uphold the timeless core values of caring, honesty, respect, and responsibility.

The G. Cecil Pruett Community Center Family YMCA also includes community space for the Cherokee County Sports Hall of Fame and Reinhardt College.

“This is one of the very best things we could have ever done,” said Mayor G. Cecil Pruett. “It’s unbelievable how many people walk up to me during the day and say, ‘Thank you and the city for providing this facility to us.’”

“My husband, Mike, and I have been YMCA members since childhood. So, it really means a lot to us to have our children learn the importance of exercise and an active lifestyle as well as to be involved with the community. We joined the YMCA as a family in December 2005. We watched the construction and couldn’t wait to get involved.

I bring my children, Mary Stewart and Drew, to the Y six days a week. Mary Stewart loves to swim and take ballet. Mike and I work out and take group exercise classes. I’m one of those people who has to work out, or I don’t feel like myself! All the ladies I exercise with notice if I miss a few days and vice versa. It’s like a little support group for one another’s fitness goals and family issues.

We also participate in family activities like Easter Egg hunts, Mommy and Me classes and Parent’s Night Out. But it’s the wonderful and friendly Pruett Family YMCA staff that makes coming here enjoyable. Drew, who is almost two, has multiple health problems, and I was thrilled to discover the YMCA staff was willing to go above and beyond to help us.

They are so supportive and compassionate with our children and our circumstances. The play center staff embraced Drew’s issues to help me get a few minutes each day for myself. They are eager to learn about his extra equipment and his prognosis and have become like family to us.

Aside from our church and our immediate neighborhood, the Y has been the greatest source of strength and support for our family during what could have been a very difficult time. The Y makes all the difference in the world to our family and is doing great things for all age groups from young children to senior citizens!”
Most people vow to exercise but give up after a few weeks when they don’t see immediate results. That’s why our director of wellness advancement, Dr. Jim Annesi, designed THE COACH APPROACH®, an exercise support process designed to teach new and returning exercisers how to start and stick with physical activity.

Free to all YMCA members, THE COACH APPROACH® has helped thousands of members become active and improve their health. Paired with a personal wellness coach, together they set up short- and long-term goals and develop a program designed around activities they like. Wellness coaches teach specific skills that help members set realistic goals, adjust their workouts, and provide reinforcing feedback and support.

After several weeks of one-on-one wellness coaching sessions, members will believe in their ability to start and stick with exercise; know how to be active, doing what they like; improve their mental and physical well-being; and enhance their overall quality of life.

“I was a self-described ‘couch potato.’ But I knew things had to change after suffering a heart attack. I took a look at my life, and I wasn’t content with it. So I joined the Summit Family YMCA in May 2005 to improve my health. After a week or so of rambling around, I signed up for THE COACH APPROACH®. My wellness coach and I talked about what I wanted to accomplish, and together we set my goals and program.

Since then, I am more fit. I’ve gone from close to 300 pounds to around 245 and I’ve kept it off. More importantly, I improved my overall conditioning. With help from the wellness coaches and other staff at the Summit Family YMCA, I am able to stay motivated and reach my goals. My cholesterol and blood pressure are better. My stress levels are remarkable. And, my strength and endurance are better than they’ve been in years!

My new goals are to maintain a healthy and positive level of training, continue to improve my conditioning and to bench press 300 pounds. Overall, I’m more toned, but I still have a little bit of a stomach. A bit more work, and I’ll be fine by summer time!

The YMCA promotes values and togetherness in a very positive environment. It’s a place where I can bring family and friends and they all are treated with respect. Where else could you find this? No where but the Y.”
“The impact is tremendous as far as my quality of life. My number one motivation was my 15-year-old son. Now, we can do things he likes to do.”

Anthony Calhoun, Summit Family YMCA
“I thought I knew it all, but week after week those kids do things that continue to teach me important lessons. I often wonder, ‘Who is the real teacher?’”

JASON WILLIAMS, COVINGTON FAMILY YMCA
Answering needs...

...and fostering a spirit of service.

Guided by Newton County’s need for recreational space and a commitment to build strong communities, the Covington Family YMCA will develop a 28-acre site to host sports programs and outdoor activities. The Arnold Fund generously donated the land for the YMCA’s outdoor center, which will provide recreation and fun for families in Newton County and the city of Covington. A local foundation, The Arnold Fund is dedicated to preserving green space and improving quality of life for local residents.

Featuring four playing fields, the site will be the home for YMCA youth soccer programs, county sport teams and events. One of the fields will be dedicated in memory of former YMCA after-school employee Chase Cain. The outdoor center also includes a future airnasium, space for summer camp, tennis courts, a playground named “Mary Beth’s Place” that celebrates the life of YMCA youth member Mary Beth Malcom, and walking trails. The land offers space for a potential building and an indoor swimming pool.

A generous gift from BB&T will fund the initial site development and construction. We are grateful to enter into a long-term partnership with The Arnold Fund and local supporters and to share in their vision of making this community even better.

“Five years ago, I signed up one of my sons for youth soccer at the Covington Family YMCA. I’ve played some soccer, so I volunteered that first season to help out and to be more involved with my son. Today, I coach my two sons’ teams and coach an all boys under-12 team.

The kids are gaining the skills they need to play the game, but more importantly, they’re being taught that play is fun. When we practice, they are having so much fun, it’s all I can do to get them to go home! They also learn about sportsmanship. If you want your kids to learn how to play a sport without the ‘winning at all cost’ attitude, then the YMCA is your home.

The fact that the staff truly cares about the sports program motivates me to be a YMCA volunteer and mentor. I try to teach my sons the same values the YMCA teaches – honesty, respect and integrity. That’s why I volunteer here and nowhere else. Ultimately, it’s about the kids, knowing I might have a positive influence in their lives. I hope I can inspire others in the community to come out and volunteer, too.

I spend most of my free time during the week and on the weekends at the fields. During the off-season, you’ll find me at the Covington YMCA watching my sons play basketball, participating in other programs or chatting with the members and staff. I’m also on the board to raise funds for these new fields. Newton County is growing, and the YMCA sports program is a great way to become involved in this community.”
Learning today...

...and engaging future leaders.

YMCA Head Start gives metro Atlanta children the opportunity to develop, learn and prepare for their futures in an inclusive and encouraging environment. The Metro Atlanta YMCA is the largest Head Start provider in the Atlanta area. Started in 1999, the program today serves 1,416 children.

YMCA Head Start provides child health and development services, builds invaluable partnerships with families and communities, and develops and manages programs that improve quality of life. Children also benefit from a physical education enhancement program.

The YMCA/Early Childhood Development Company Head Start program serves Fulton County with four partners and three traditional stand-alone locations accredited by the National Association for the Education of Young Children (NAEYC).

We are creating a brighter future for these young children. By preparing them educationally, nutritionally and socially, YMCA Head Start readies these promising children for their first days in school and the many challenges and opportunities they will face in the days to come.

“I love my children... all 137 of them! As the Rosalie Wright Head Start center manager, my dedicated staff and I work with these children, and the thousands of children who came before them, preparing them all to be successful in life. And like these children, I was able to do the same.

I’ve been involved with the Head Start program for more than 20 years. As a single mother of six children, Head Start provided me many opportunities to develop my parenting skills and on-the-job training through volunteerism. I became a volunteer because my youngest child was in Head Start. I started helping in the classrooms by reading to the kids.

But, I wanted to become more involved. Through grants provided by Head Start, I took courses and programs that helped me obtain the necessary training for a degree in early childhood education.

I’m very proud of our active involvement within the community. We work closely with families, schools and day-care centers in the area. Everyone benefits by getting involved with a child’s education.

Our annual father/child picnic is a great example. We bring together children and their estranged fathers who want to be involved in their children’s lives but don’t know how. This gives them a chance to settle their differences for a moment and reconnect with their children. Some dads travel as far away as New York City for the occasion. This year, 75 dads came to Grant Park to be with their children. This is our third year, and it’s quite a success!

The Metro Atlanta YMCA has moved Head Start to the next level. Their commitment extends to the children, the families and the program staff. They provide whatever we need, from facility upgrades and more nutritious meals to continuing education and staff training. The YMCA is second to none!

Because of my personal growth and development, I’m able to identify with a single parent’s or a family’s struggles and can facilitate a meaningful Head Start experience for them and for their child. Being involved with the YMCA has made me one of the best.”
“I’ve grown through my connection to the YMCA’s history and legacy of commitment to children, staff and family.”

BLANCHE CLAYTON,
ROSALIE WRIGHT HEAD START CENTER
Metro Atlanta YMCA 2006 Impact

FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE
Empowered 19,319 children, families and adults with $27.5 million of financial assistance for Y programs like child care, Head Start, camp, youth sports, and teen development. Provided $2.65 million in Partner With Youth annual campaign assistance.

YOUTH SPORTS AND RECREATION
Helped to address childhood obesity and build a life-long appreciation of health and wellness in 43,087 children through participation in values-based physical activities that build skills and self-confidence.

AFTER SCHOOL
Gave 8,979 children enriching activities during non-school hours in a safe, supervised, affordable, and accessible place. Increased physical activity and reduced health risks in youth by offering Youth Fit For Life™ at after-school sites, YMCAs and at schools during physical education classes. Operated 113 after-school sites.

PRE-SCHOOL AND HEAD START
Helped 3,787 children prepare for kindergarten by providing a quality, early childhood learning foundation.

YOUTH DEVELOPMENT
Helped to develop 6,629 teenagers by guiding them with positive, adult role models, involving them in leadership development activities and community service programs, and preparing them to become future business and community leaders.

DAY CAMP
Offered a place for 11,519 youth to go when school is out, to build relationships and enrich their understanding of the outdoors while having fun in a secure setting.
RESIDENT CAMP
Used challenging outdoor experiences to help 3,535 young people grow emotionally, mentally, physically, and spiritually.

YOUNG PEOPLE WITH DISABILITIES
Offered an opportunity for 868 young people with physical impairments to play team sports and learn to swim. Happy Club outings gave 328 young adults with developmental disabilities time away from family, social interaction, recreational activities, and a chance to learn new skills. Worked with 41 different, local agencies.

WELLNESS
Progressively involved, supported and empowered 126,233 individuals and family members in the pursuit of health enhancement and the reduction of obesity and related chronic diseases. Supported new and returning exercisers and those most at risk with THE COACH APPROACH® exercise support process.

VOLUNTEERS
Involved 5,428 men, women and young adults as volunteers in different programs.

COLLABORATIONS
Avoided the duplication of programs and services by collaborating with more than 100 government, health care and community service organizations including Atlanta Housing Authority, DeKalb County Schools, Northside Hospital, and American Association of Adapted Sports Programs, Inc. (AAASP).
Dear YMCA Friends:

When you join, play, donate, or volunteer at the Metro Atlanta YMCA, you feel good and help the greater good. At the Y, families can build stronger bonds and become engaged with their communities. Young people can develop positive skills and values to guide them throughout their lives.

You can feel good knowing the Metro Atlanta YMCA helps others improve their well-being. And, you can feel good knowing your YMCA has a philanthropic commitment to be the most inclusive community service organization in this area.

Significant events this past year include the December 31, 2006, merger with the Cobb County YMCA; the opening of The Villages at Carver Family YMCA, a joint partnership between the Metro Atlanta YMCA and the Butler Street YMCA; and renovations and expansions at the South DeKalb Family YMCA, Robert D. Fowler Family YMCA, and the Andrew and Walter Young Family YMCA.

The return on these investments is evident when you enter a YMCA and see children who are developing character and values, teens who are emerging as leaders in their communities, and local families who are building stronger relationships.

We are pleased to present highlights from the 2006 audited, consolidated financial statements to you, our friends and community supporters. The Metro Atlanta YMCA is financially strong, and you will feel good knowing that strength allows us to invest in our community, to collaborate with many local partners, and to share in the higher purpose of serving others.

As stewards of the financial information presented in this report, we are responsible for its integrity and objectivity. The board’s finance and audit committee meets regularly with the senior management team and Ernst & Young to ensure our responsibilities for appropriate policies and controls and preparation of the consolidated financial statements and related data. A copy of the complete audited consolidated financial statement, including Ernst & Young’s unqualified independent auditors’ report, is available upon request.

YMCA MISSION
Your YMCA, reflecting its Judeo-Christian heritage, is an association of volunteers, members and staff, open to and serving all, providing programs and services which develop spirit, mind, and body. Financial assistance is available based on need. The YMCA actively seeks to identify and involve those in need.
